

RED RHINO NEWS

UPDATE FROM WILSON

My internship commenced in April and has four rotations: Pediatrics, obstetric and gynecology, surgery, and internal medicine. Each rotation takes 12 weeks. I started with pediatrics the broad objective being management of childhood diseases and this entailed putting my previous learned clinical skills into practice. While in pediatrics I also rotated in neonatology and it was so fascinating to raise neonates less than 700 g to 1.65 kgs and discharge them from NBU. My next rotation was obstetric and gynecology where the main objective was to do Cesarean sections and handle obstetrics emergencies like hypertensive emergencies e.g. preclampsia and ectopic pregnancies. All my Cesarean sections were successful and to date I still help the department whenever I'm requested to. Currently I'm rotating in surgery, my dream area of specialization! So far I have performed more than 15 exploratory laparatomies, 36 hernia repairs, excision of lipomas and other masses, and several amputations. I have assisted in several fracture repairs both internal and external, removal of thyroids, etc. I have one week left in the surgery rotation. My last rotation will be internal medicine, and I'm looking forward to another interesting experience. Here the main objective will be to perfect my clinical acumen in dealing with tropical diseases and other diseases in the older patients.

"My Mum is Mam Joy. She is a good mum. She is fat and her colour is white and pink. She is soft and her hair is yellow and brown. She has come back to see me. She likes good manners. I got new clothes and a book and a movie. She brought a train set. I like my mum Joy. She is good." — Jeff, almost 11

An email from Micheal, 10 1/2, to Susan Traverso:

"Dear Auntie Susan, mam Joy says you and uncle Greg are coming. I am very happy. I am happy even if you do not bring the toy bus. I will show you our chicken house. It is for Mam Joy. She likes an egg for red rhino. Love from Michael"
